        Cottagecore and goblincore are two distinct aesthetics that have their own unique characteristics.
    Cottagecore is a style that revolves around the idea of living a simple life in the countryside, surrounded by nature and rustic charm.
    It is often associated with vintage clothing, floral patterns, and traditional crafts such as knitting and baking. On the other hand, goblincore is a subculture that is centered around the love for nature and the outdoors, but with a darker twist. It is characterized by earthy tones, mossy textures, and a fascination with all things creepy and crawly.
